Honesty and Intelligence. It pays to be honest, you say.

A clerk who lets a customer buy a damaged piece of goods, a witness who holds back the truth which would clear a prisoner, a medical practitioner who takes his patient's money when he knows he is doing him no good,—all are culpably dishonest. Speaking of the dishonesty of medical emen reminds us that only the past week there has come under our personal observation a form of dishonesty which is almost too mean for narration.

It is generally known that doctors bind themselves by codes, resolutions and oaths not to use any advertised medicines. Now, there is a medicine on the market which, for the past ten years, has accomplished a marvelous amount of good in the cure of Kidney and Liver diseases, and diseases arising from the derangement of these great organs,—we re-fer to Warner's Safe Cure. So wide spread are the merits of this medicine that the majority of the doctors of this country know from actual evidence that it will cure Advanced Kidney Disease, which is but another name for Bright's Dis-

The medical profession have put themselves on record as admitting that there is no cure for this terrible malady, yet there are physicians base enough and dishonest enough to procure Warner's Safe Cure in a surreptitious manner, put sthe same into plain, four-onnce vials, and charge their patients $2.00 per vial, when a sixteen-ounce bottle of the remedy, in its original package can be bought at any drug store in the world for $1.25.

Perhaps the doctor argues that the cure of the patient justifies his dishon-esty, yet he will boldly stand up at the next county medical meeting and denonnce Warner's Safe Cure as a patent medicine, and one which he cannot and

The fact is that the people are waking up to the truth that the medical profession is far from honest, and that it does not possess a monopoly of wisdom in the curing of disease, doctoring the many symptoms of kidney disease, instead of striking at the seat of diseasethe kidneys themselves,-allowing patients to die rather than use a remedy known to be a specific, simply because it has been advertised, and when patients are dead from Advanced Kidney Disease, still practicing deception by giving the cause of death in their certificate as pneumonia, dropsy, heart disease, or some other accompanying effect of Bright's Disease.

All this is prima facie evidence of incompetency, bigotry and dishonesty. We speak but the truth when we say that Messrs. H. H. Wainer & Co. have done a most philanthropic work for the past ten years in educating the people Vegetable, containing no mercury, up to the knowledge they now enjoy, especially of maladies growing out of diseases of the Kidneys and Liver, and are deserving of all praise for their honcomplished by taking RADWAY'S esty and straightforwardness in expos ing shams and dishonesty of all kinds. How Time-Tables Are Made.

A railroad time-table, governing the running of trains on any road of considerable length, is one of the most important things in the management. The preparation of such a table is a very ingenious as well as critical bit of work.
The means employed are of the simplest sort—common pins and spools of colored threads, in connection with a big sheet of drawing-paper mounted on an easel. This paper is called a time chart.

The chart is ruled either for two, five or ten minutes' time by horizontal lines and perpendicular cross lines. The "time" is marked above the horizontal lines and the distances or stations and terminals down the first perpendicular line. For illustration, 12 midnight is the mark on the first horizontal line and each hour is marked until the twentyforth or the following midnight hour is reached on the last horizontal line.

Between the hour lines the space is divided into minutes and graduated as fine as desired. On a two-minute chart the space between the hours is divided into ten minutes' time, and the ten minutes' time into two minutes' time. The hour lines are made heavy and the lesser time lines are of a lighter shade to distinguish them. One terminus of the road is marked on the first line beside the first time mark. 12 midnight. The other stations follow rangement, provided the pins and thread are ready.

It is calculated that the running time shall be say twenty-five miles an hour, and, for the purpose of illustration, the tracing of one passenger train will

Pluck vs. Luck. truthful comment on what is commonly termed "Luck:" See that young man early and late at the store, intent to serve his employer. Why? Because in caring for the interest of his firm he's caring for his own. His salary is meagre, but he is determined to live within his income, and he saves something. His money is earned by diligent labor and he is careful in spending it. His habits are good and his personal wants few: it is not his ambition, and power. to be a "hail fellow well met," among the giddy throng of youth who take life easy and spend money freely; his aim is nobler, higher. He looks into the future typewriting establishment, says that and finds it holds out no promise of reward except in the strict performance

Step by step he advances in salary, in influence, in experience, in position. His character is capital, his reputation the key of success. From boy to clerk, ants has earned on an average of $70 a from clerk to salesman, from salesman to junior partner, to full partner, and increase over the usual rates to comfinally to head of the firm and head in capital. These are the successive stages that mark his business career.

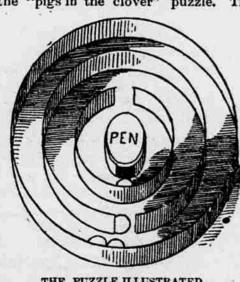

He grows in wealth, in position, and in honor. His business and his fame swell beyond local markets, and extend to the wider avenues of trade. Although the possessor of large wealth he is not puffed up with self-importance, but is willing to aid young men who, like himself, have the will and ability to climb. Young reader, this is no fancy sketch. but is actual history. The man and his success are real to the life. His name and fame are as wide as the markets of the world. Once a clerk in a small country store one of the members of a large family, whose boyhood and youth were spent in humble surroundings, but whose later years are passed amid the stirring events of the great metropolis of which he is an honored citizen.

What was it, luck, or pluck that made the man? Look within, young clerks in some far-off country store, and find the answer. Your own heart will tell you that luck did not do it. Why not climb the same way through duty nobly done? Oh, it is royal to climb through truth. and honor, and right. There is a glow in this exercise that kindles a new fire in the eye and a new euthusiasm in the heart. Life broadens out into high endeavor and the world becomes a theatre for grandest achievements. Young man, resolve to climb, be brave of heart and stong of will and pause not until you win the prize.

The Bonnet Era.

We are living veritably in a bonnet era. The bonnet is donned on every possible occasion. This statement made from close observation, carries with it discouragement to the sensibilities of the amusement lover who attends the theatre and opera, to enjoy their merits and not make a study of millinery. Luncheon toilets are no longer complete unless supplemented with a bonnet; and one cannot but admire the stoic firmness with which a party of ladies will chatter lightly through a luncheon of several hours' duration, their pretty heads burdened with the weight of a fashionable bonnet. Perhaps the blame should be laid at the An exchange makes the following doors of the milliners, who fashion such marvelously becoming headgear that they are irresistible.
